The Philosophy

During the pandemic, we at the Anatolia College Libraries enriched our website pages with content in a user-friendly way .

- Our goal was to put together useful content in user friendly libguides and make the teacher and student experience, as easy as possible, during this time.
- We designed the guides with a student-centered approach.
- The content is frequently updated and most of it is openly available on our website.
- Firstly, we shared open scholarly content (which publishers decided to offer for free) to our users.
- Our guide with the most views is the "StaySafe Resources..." Guide with 7,523 views (including HS and Elementary students)
- Second most viewed is our "Teaching & Learning Guide" with 3,862 views
- And last, our third most viewed guide is "How to access our online library" with 1,879 views.
- There were 10 new library guides created from all Anatolia College Libraries (March 2020- April 2021), out of which 8 were created by the Bissell Librarians and are focused on teaching and learning

Information & Communication

There was a number of key considerations when communicating about Covid-19

- 1 Information Needs for different groups
- 2 Preferred Communication channels
- 3 Literacy & Understanding
- 4 Reaching everyone
- 5 Build on what you have

Farrington, M. and Santos, R. F. D. (no date) 'Community Engagement During Covid-19: A guide for community facing staff', p. 7.

StaySafe Resources for the Anatolia College Community & Friends

The first most viewed Libguide of Anatolia College Libraries

1

Within this guide we collected open resources for all our age groups (students, parents, staff and faculty) and academic divisions for their wellbeing during the lockdown.

Most of the resources include:

- E-books (both from library collection and OA)
- Virtual Museums
- List of Theaters, Concerts, Music, & Podcasts & Videos
- Wellbeing resources (yoga and stress management)
- Educational Activities for Children
- Updates for COVID-19 (mostly in Greek)

Teaching & Learning Guide

2

A guide on best practices on teaching & learning

Anatolia College Libraries prepared a comprehensive guide as there isn't a teaching and learning department in our institution and we decided to step up to support our teachers and educators with information, tools, and resources on teaching and learning.

This guide contains reviewed resources and existing tools on how to design, develop, and deliver teaching and learning not only physically but most particularly in a digital environment.

This libguide includes:

- Pedagogy & Design Resources
 - Teaching & Learning Platform Tools
 - Learning Hub (Library's Writing Center) shortcut
 - Digital Humanities Tools
 - How-to Series
 - Netiquette
 - MOOCs & Webinars
- Working from Home

How to access our Online Library

This guide intends to help you access the library e-resources and discover all potential uses of this incredible wealth of information.

3

This guide is mostly for use by Academic Students and its content applies to their research needs

Find on this guides resources for:

- Remote Access
- Tutorials and How to Videos for Library's Subscribed Databases
- Open Academic Content Due to COVID-19

The purpose of this guide is to make the students feel that everything he/she needs is in one place.

The guide was created in a way which gives each user the possibility to easily navigate from one place to another.

To conclude

The new library guides were created in order to better support our users and our community while they were online and access to the library was not possible. These guides were used as a teaching tool.

Thank you!
